"A lecturer of international stature"

In detail

Stefano D'Anna graduated in Economics with First Class Honours (110 cum laude) and in sociology (First Class) from the Catholic University, Milan. Founder of numerous companies and international consulting firms; he has been a leading manager of multinational Corporations in Europe, USA and Middle East. He has been on the Board of Directors of the European School of Economics (ESE) since its foundation, Executive VP of ESE Foundation New York and Rector of all ESE campuses in London, New York, Madrid, Rome, Florence and Milan. Under his leadership, The European School of Economics has deeply innovated the European and worldwide academic panorama, asserting a new pedagogic philosophy and a formula which weds a renaissance vision, Italian style and culture, with English academic rigor and internationalism, and solid American pragmatism.

What he offers you

Stefano D'Anna is an international lecturer and his Integrity and Timeless Leadership Seminars have been attended by entrepreneurs and corporate leaders from all over the world. His lessons on liberalism pertaining to concepts of freedom and individualism are considered revolutionary. Having participated as a keynote speaker and guest of honour at over 100 major international conventions in Europe, USA and South America, he is a highly sought-after and respected speaker.

How he presents

Challenged by a mission to create a new generation of corporate leaders, global communicators, economists and entrepreneurs that are capable of harmonizing the ever apparent antagonisms, ie. economy and ethics, action and contemplation, financial power and love, Stefano D'Anna's powerful and insightful presentations are memorable and high in content.

Languages

He presents in Italian & English.
